

2018 WINTER DEW TOUR SKI AND SNOWBOARD STREETSTYLE RESULTS | RECAP

Breckenridge, Colo. (December 14, 2018) The Dew Tour action carried the momentum from the slopes of Breckenridge Ski Resort to downtown Breckenridge for the Ski and Snowboard Streetstyle Finals. Familiar faces from the Ski and Snowboard Team Challenge events put on a show in front of an energetic, packed crowd as 13 competitors per final showed off their style and skill under the lights.

In Snowboard Streetstyle, Finland's Rene Rinnekangas who is known as one of the most creative riders in the mix, went big with a crowd-pleasing performance that earned him the win, while USA's Nate Haust and Brandon Davis finished in second and third place. Best Trick was awarded to Pat Fava, who originally came into the competition as an alternate.

"I was just trying to have as much fun as possible and put full lines together. I'm super stoked and didn't see the win coming at all," said Rinnekangas.

In Ski Streetstyle, last year's champion Keegan Kilbride (USA) took home the Best Trick award while Alex Hall (USA) stole the show for the second day in a row. After earning the top score in the Team Challenge Jibs competition for Faction yesterday, Hall clinched the first place finish tonight in his second of three Dew Tour competitions this weekend. He will compete one more time in the men's Ski Slopestyle final tomorrow. Colby Stevenson (USA) and Alex Bellemare (CAN) finished in second and third respectively behind Hall.

"The course had a good speed, dope rails, and pretty fun!" said Hall. "I'm in the individual competition tomorrow so I came out just wanting to have fun. It's so fun with all of our friends and we all just feed off each other to go bigger."
